The African Wealth Systems Roundtable

Structuring African Economies for Transgenerational Prosperity

Executive Summary.

- Africa's transformation needs more than funding — it requires systemic thinking and strategic collaboration.
- The continent is at a critical inflection point in its development journey.
- Despite receiving $1.3 trillion in aid over 60 years, Africa still underperforms economically.
- It has vast natural resources and the youngest population in the world, yet struggles to harness them effectively.
- By 2050, Africa is projected to become the world's largest consumer market with a $29 trillion economy.

- The continent loses over $88 billion annually through illicit financial flows.
- Africa remains import-dependent in key sectors and struggles to retain wealth within its borders.
- Traditional development models address symptoms, not systems, failing to create sustainable prosperity.
- Many projects and programs yield short-term results, often leading to dependency instead of independence.
- The central challenge has shifted from recognizing Africa's potential to understanding why it hasn't produced lasting, self-sustaining prosperity.

The Answer:

Africa doesn't lack capacity, it lacks systems.

Three-Pillar Transformation

Wealth Creation (Alignment)
Aligning mindsets, cultural identity, and institutional structures to generate wealth independently

Wealth Multiplication (Ascension)
Building interconnected value chains that retain and compound wealth within African economies

Wealth Transfer (Affluence)
Establishing legal, financial, and cultural mechanisms for transgenerational prosperity

Proven Impact

Applied wealth systems thinking post-genocide → 8% average annual GDP growth over 20 years, integrated coffee-tourism-technology economy generating $2B+ annually.

Redesigned coffee sector from raw exports to premium brands → Increased value from $3-5/kg to $15-30/kg, created 2M jobs, $1B annual foreign exchange.

Transformed diamond discovery into systematic wealth creation → Evolved from poorest to upper-middle-income in one generation through sovereign wealth fund and strategic reinvestment.

The African Wealth Systems Roundtable

This is not another development conference, it's the strategic convening that will architect Africa's economic renaissance. This roundtable will convene Africa's most influential wealth creators, policymakers, investors, and institutional leaders to co-architect the systems that can sustain prosperity for the next 100 years. Unlike traditional forums, this is not about conversation, it is about securing commitments that reframe Africa as a global hub for wealth creation, multiplication and transfer.

What Makes This Different:

- Designs concrete blueprints for national and sectoral wealth systems
- Structures actual deals through dedicated Deal Rooms with committed capital
- Forms strategic partnerships with signed MOUs and implementation timelines
- Influences policy frameworks through direct government engagement
- Creates lasting institutions including the African Wealth Systems Coalition

The Power Circle:
70+ Continental Decision-Makers

Government & Policy:
Finance Ministers, Central Bank Governors, Development Ministers.

Financial Power:
DFI executives, Family Offices managing $50B+ diaspora wealth,
Sovereign Wealth Funds

Traditional Authority:
African Royalty, Religious Leaders, Cultural Custodians

Private Sector:
Technology Entrepreneurs, Agribusiness Leaders, Infrastructure Developers

This is access and strategic positioning at the center of Africa's economic transformation.

The Time is Now

Traditional development approaches have had six decades to transform Africa. They've achieved progress but failed to create self-sustaining prosperity systems.

The next decade will determine whether Africa becomes a continent of autonomous wealth creation or continued dependency, a global economic powerhouse or a missed opportunity.
Your organization can be positioned at the center of this transformation, or watch from the sidelines as others seize the opportunity.

The African Wealth Systems Roundtable 2025 is where Africa's economic renaissance begins. It's where vision becomes strategy, strategy becomes partnerships, and partnerships become the foundation for generational prosperity.

Join us in architecting
the wealth systems that will transform a continent.
